In the early morning of September 2, 1666, young Thomas woke up to a strange smell of smoke. As he looked out the window of his small wooden house near London Bridge, he saw flames licking the sky. Soon, buckets of water and fire hooks appeared, but the fire spread rapidly through the narrow streets. Despite the destruction, London was rebuilt stronger, and Thomas learned that even in disaster, communities can come together to rebuild what was lost.

With a deep breath, Orville took the controls, and the engine roared to life. The plane rolled forward, lifted off the ground, and for twelve seconds, it was flying. The brothers cheered as their dream became reality. That tiny flight marked the beginning of the age of powered flight, opening the skies to everyone.
